25X1

1. In the early hours of 28 May 1953, a number of freight-cars - to which no engine was attached - were observed in Malbork (Marienburg) railway station. In the middle of this assembly of cars were 12 new railway engines painted green.

2. These engines bore the following markings:

a. An inscription in Latin lettering on an iron plate outside the driver's cabin. "im. Josefa Stalina" (in the name of Joseph Stalin). 25X1

b. A red star, the letters C.C.C.P. (USSR) 25X1

3. [redacted] it was a normal gauge track. The cars between which the engines were standing bore Polish markings.

25X1

1. [redacted] Comment: This may have been a reference to the Joseph Stalin Locomotive Works in Poznan formerly called the H. Cegielski Works.
